What is a Communication Plan?

A communication plan is a living, breathing document used to align public information activities with the goals, objectives, and key communication messages of the organization. The plan prioritizes needs, identifies audiences, determines the message and how it is delivered, and measures whether or not the effort was successful.

The plan is assessed and updated annually and includes measurable objectives and outcomes.

The Mecklenburg County Public Information Department

HISTORY OF PUBLIC INFORMATION

Before 2006, public information in Mecklenburg County government was primarily decentralized with a small central office and other public information officers (PIOs) working in various departments.

To enhance transparency, consistency and accuracy, department PIOs were transferred into the centralized Public Information Department, where they remain, along with web services.

THE PUBLIC INFORMATION DEPARTMENT MISSION:

STRUCTURE

The Public Information Department is composed of one part-time and 21 full-time staff members and divided into four Centers of Excellence:

Each team is comprised of a manager and staff members who are assigned to work within their specific areas of expertise with County departments or services. These teams have direct responsibility to meet regularly and communicate with County department contacts and other stakeholders to help achieve the goals of this plan.

HOW WE MEASURE SUCCESS

Public Information annually measures its internal and external performance in multiple ways, including:

• Community Survey results showing residents’ trust of information received from the County and how effectively Public Information communicates County information, and raises awareness of programs and services. Many of those measures make up the Public Awareness Index.

• Key Performance Indicators providing service level measures of our activities.

• Customer Satisfaction Survey results that give detailed employee feedback about Public Information.

• Employee Climate Survey results that reflect employee satisfaction with communication efforts.

Public Information results from the 2018 Community Survey are included in the Appendix.

SUMMARY:

Mecklenburg County is one of the fastest-growing areas in the country. Information is fluid and must be constantly updated to be effective.

In addition to annually updating this plan, Public Information meets with County departments each year to determine specific communication needs.

Those plans will be incorporated into this plan as they are developed and implemented.
